

Hello, if you are reading this, you have found your way to

Arran's Community Radio Station

arransound.com

A Very Warm Welcome

We are a volunteer led internet Radio Station, run by a small management team of people on Arran, for all those living on Arran or who love Arran, wherever they may bide.

We are a non political non religious organisation

From the beginning, over thirty years ago, Arran's talking newspaper, with fourteen volunteer readers, have served the sight impaired, dyslectic and anyone who finds it difficult to read printed media, by recording and distributing our local weekly newspaper The Arran Banner and The Voice for Arran our online monthly newspaper.

Recognising the need to modernise and with an eye to the future, the group has encouraged the formation of a new, extended team, building on the longevity of Arran Sound and launching a great adventure for 2020

arransound.com

A community radio for all on Arran

which will not only bring a fantastic range of audio Arran news and activities to those original subscribers of the talking newspaper, the entire community can join us in one place, keeping up to date across the island.

All of whom live and work on the island and can be contacted directly through the contact button above.

The content, live, audio and visual, is contributed by members of the Arran community, particularly our young people from Arran High School and the Youth Foundation and our lovely volunteer readers.

You will find links to many external Arran organisations and services.

If you are an Arran based group and wish to offer some content or information about yourselves, get in touch via the contact link.

We are an inclusive, non-discriminatory, organisation and warmly welcome anyone who shares our desire to provide entertainment, relevant, fun and factual information to our listeners

Please remember that political, sexual and religious comment are out-with the remit of our editorial guide lines and will not be published or transmitted.
